1. Statements by Jerzy Nawrot, chief of the Polish Trade Mission in Prague, indicate that Poland's need for hard currency is critical and that the Poles are looking for hard currency markets for Czech textiles, leather, machinery, and other manufactured goods delivered to them under Czech-Polish trade agreements. They are willing to sell at 20 to 30 percent below the official Czech export prices. Allegedly, these Polish sales are not known to the Czechs, and Polish-Czech relations would be adversely affected if the Czechs learned of them.
